HOW CAN WE HELP YOU?

While we can help you get things in order at the beginning of your relationship, by providing advice on cohabitation and pre-nuptial agreements, unfortunately it's more likely you will need us in the event of relationship breakdown.

If you're discussing divorce or separation with your partner, you will need advice on the legal process. We can help you decide on any issues relating to finances and property.

We also offer help on arrangements for childcare, whether arranging custody or helping to create a secure and stable environment for vulnerable children.

CHILDCARE

When a child is at risk, action must be swift and decisive.

Our childcare solicitors have an exceptional reputation and a track record of securing safe and stable long-term solutions for vulnerable children. Our team mainly advises parents and guardians, but we are experienced in helping all parties find a solution that works for the most important person: the child.

We can help you with:

- Contact and residence disputes
- Child Arrangements Orders
- Children's Services and child protection issues
- Special Guardianship Orders
- Parental responsibility
- Adoption

When it comes to your family, we will always recommend court as a last resort, you may wish to consider the alternatives such as collaboration and mediation (for more information please see our family mediation leaflet). However, if the dispute is particularly bitter or domestic violence is involved, sometimes court is the only option. If it does come to court; we can provide you with all the specialist help you need.

WORRIED ABOUT PAYING FOR THE LEGAL SERVICES YOU NEED?

If you're concerned about payment, no matter the reason, we offer you a range of alternatives. From fixed fee options to advice on whether you qualify for legal aid. If you are in a low-income household and do not qualify for legal aid, we may be able to offer you subsidised legal rates.

Alternatively, you may prefer our "self-help" service; designed to lower the cost of your family matter. We'll provide legal advice only as and when you need it, putting you in control of the costs.

WHY SHOULD YOU TRUST US WITH YOUR CASE?

Your lawyer will be highly experienced in family law. Many of our team are members of Resolution (an association dedicated to dealing with family matters through compromise and settlement), members of the Law Society's Family Law Panel and are also mediators and collaborative lawyers.

Although it may feel as though your situation is unique, our experienced team have seen it all. We've helped many families in similar situations come to the best resolution for them. Which means we will recognise the best possible path for you, saving you unnecessary stress, cost or delay.

More than this, you can rely upon our lawyers to look after you. Your well-being is our priority and we will do everything to guide you away from confrontation and keep proceedings constructive.
